BAY ST. LOUIS, MISS., FRIDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1951

VOL. 60 — NO. 49

Observations...

By UDELL

That annual gridiron classic, the famous Flea-Fly game, is scheduled for this Sunday, December 9. The 35th edition of one of the most entertaining football games of the year, will be presented at the S. C. stadium. Proceeds from this game will be used to provide a Christmas party for the underprivileged children of Hancock County. Coaches this year are Brokers Rian, Albert and Noel for the Fleas, and Brokers Glenn, Stephen and Albert for the Flies. According to records, the Fleas have won 10 of the past 19 games. This year's game should prove to be quite a scap.

The Parks and Playground Commission of the City of Bay St. Louis is really getting to work. A little playground has been started on the corner of Union and Second streets on the lot owned by the City. This permanent playground will be fenced in to keep the children out of danger while at play. Children need some area for recreation; with an active Parks and Playgrounds Commission, such as ours, the parents won't have to worry much longer about having their youngsters playing in the streets. The equipment set up is not all that will be used here; more will come. Additional equipment has been set up at Taylor school in Cedar Point; and swings, etc., have been ordered for Valena C. Jones to provide an equipped playground for the colored children of our City.

We would like to pass a few words to the City Fathers for their example to the citizens of Bay St. Louis in starting the ball rolling with outdoor decorations. The City Hall certainly displays the Christmas spirit. Isn't it about time for outdoor decorations to start showing up in town?

My last trip over the bridge wasn't so bumpy, but there are still a few rough spots to be smoothed out. It will take a lot of smoothing and propping up to make traveling over that "nightmare" a pleasure. Hate to even think about riding over with a truck in front and maybe a bus or another truck in back of the car. The vibrations almost make you feel as though the bridge is going to cave in any minute. Can't something be done to help preserve this "make-believe" bridge until June, 1952?

We wish to congratulate our good friend, Mr. Rene de Montluzin, on the occasion of his eighty-sixth birthday celebrated Sunday, December 2. "Mr. Rene," as he is called by many, has seen a number of decades of progress in the City of Bay St. Louis where he has spent the greater part of his life. We wish him good health and many more years here with his family and friends.

Does Bay St. Louis have Mississippi's Outstanding Young Man of 1951 hidden? A search for Mississippi's Outstanding Young Man is being made by the State Junior Chamber of Commerce for the fifth consecutive year. The purpose of this program is to recognize and in some measure, reward those outstanding young men who have given unselfishly of their time and talent to the betterment of Mississippi. The nomination itself is to be considered an honor. Start looking around and see if in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi's Outstanding Young Man can be found. You can find any young man, 21 through 35 years of age, who has been of service and an outstanding example of precept to the people of this state and send his name in to the SEA COAST ECHO. We will then send in name and qualifications to the C. of C. Recognizing the leadership of one young man will encourage other potential leaders within our City to take active part in the development of the community. Start thinking of our Outstanding Young Man today.

Bay St. Louis will be invaded by a group of movie stars directing from Hollywood tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Court House. Among the stars who will make an appearance here will be Robert Stack, Charlton Heston, Lydia Clark and Bruce Bennett. Producer Irving Ascher and writer Dorothy Hughes will also make personal appearances on the tour which is under the direction of Henry Plith and George Nungesser, managers. This is a Movietime tour celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the movies. These stars direct from Hollywood, are paying tribute to our town by

Show School Film

The March of Time film, "The Fight for Better Schools," was shown here recently through the cooperation of the National Citizens Committee for Education.

This picture attempts to show what can be done about the schools when the citizens become aroused to the needs by showing what was accomplished in one town.

The citizens became concerned over the conditions in their schools, when their demands were ignored by the local school board, they went to the state Legislature and promoted a law to permit them to elect a school board and then picked candidates who would work on the improvement program and carried on a persistent campaign to have these candidates elected.

The citizens' candidates were elected and the progressive program was begun and continues to the present time because the citizens have kept alive this interest in the schools. Any community can have the kind of schools they want provided the citizens are determined and are willing to work for their objectives.

Awakening of interest and a community working together for the good of the schools brought results. Any community which stands for the betterment of the community can accomplish what they want.

Mrs. McDonald Speaks at Meeting

Mrs. C. C. McDonald, Mrs. John Husband and Mrs. J. A. Hebert attended the first Parent Workshop for Mississippi held in Gulfport on Thursday and Friday of last week. The two-day session closed Friday afternoon with a talk by Mrs. McDonald who said, "In this time of stress and strain we need to fill the deep spiritual wells. If a son shall ask bread of a father will he give him a stone?"

In challenging the group, she said, "You who did come can do so much with what you have."

Mrs. W. J. Hamilton, chairman and leader of the workshop, organized the group of 37 women into a well knit working unit.

Problems of children of all ages were brought forth. Mrs. W. W. Lawless, president from Columbia, and Mrs. Husband, program chairman, both of whom are workshop leaders, aided in the discussion.

The program was to meet the needs of parents and teachers.

Tells of Education Program at Meet

J. A. Travis, secretary of the Mississippi Citizens Council, was guest speaker at the Nov. 26 meeting of the Hancock County Teachers Association held at Kiln High School. E. E. Breland, superintendent of Education, introduced Mr. Travis.

Mr. Travis discussed a program for education developed by the Mississippi Citizens Council on Education. He suggested the following outline: a minimum foundation program including teachers' salaries, transportation and administration; better buildings for whites and negroes, to be financed mostly from state funds; better administration; a. All schools (exclusive of existing separate school districts) combined into one county-wide unit for administrative purposes; b. A five member county school board representing each supervisor's district, to be elected by a county wide vote to serve staggered terms.

County Superintendent elected by county school board to be fully qualified, adequately paid and sufficiently provided with the necessities of office; d. One additional number from each congressional district added to the state board of education by vote of county school board members. The estimated value received from this outline, if ever put into effect, he listed as continued segregation, equalization of opportunities, cost borne equitably; local autonomy preserved and future citizens prepared for tomorrow's world.

The subject was then opened for discussion and many questions were asked which Mr. Travis answered.

D. J. Martin, president of the association and Mrs. Jeanne Williams, secretary, reported on the previous meeting.

At the close, G. E. Guidroz, superintendent of the Kiln Vocational High School, invited the teachers into the lunch room for supper. Here a well prepared and well served menu, under the direction of Mrs. Cornelius Favre and her lunch room assistants, was served the teachers as a treat from the board of trustees of the school. A social hour was spent. The next meeting of the association will be held at Logtown in January.

ONE PINT - ONE LIFE

Citizens of Bay St. Louis and Hancock County will be called upon next week to give a pint of their blood when the blood bank visits Bay St. Louis.

This National Blood Program of the American Red Cross is also a community project and thus both a community opportunity and responsibility. Blood donated by our citizens will be used in the King's Daughters and Sons hospital to help save the lives of our friends and neighbors. Multiply the benefits we receive by all the other communities in the country participating in this worth-while national program, and we see a potential force which can reach into every American home alleviating suffering and saving lives.

The need for human blood—and blood can be obtained only from humans—has been obvious for a long time. Accidents in our homes, on our streets or along our highways are more frequent than battle casualties were during World War II. Blood can be used miraculously to save lives of our neighbors and friends who meet with these accidents or need blood as a result of a serious operation or illness.

The Hancock County Red Cross Chapter, with full approval of medical, health and hospital authorities, has wisely voted to participate in the National Blood Program. It is essential, if this program is to be carried through to a successful end, that healthy men and women between the ages of 18 and 60 support the project continuously. By donating a few minutes of time and one pint of blood, our quota of many pints can be filled. A donation of a few minutes and a pint of blood will also save a life which may be that of a close friend, neighbor or family member.

Indeed, the blood program is a community project and responsibility; therefore, every public-spirited citizen is urged to contact the local Red Cross office today and make an appointment to give a life-saving pint of blood.

Mississippi's oil and gas industry has four processing plants located in various sections of the State. They process a substantial portion of the State's daily oil and gas production and serve Mississippi markets with their products. The Cranfield Plant (1) is located in Adams and Franklin counties near Natchez. This field is unitized with the California Company, the Gulf Refining Company and the Placid Oil Company participating. It is a cycling plant designed to handle 100 million cubic feet of gas a day. This gas is processed for the recovery of propane, natural gasoline and condensate and returned to the formation at 4,000 pounds pressure, thus maintaining reservoir pressure. The plant also traps all oil produced from the Cranfield wells at 400 pounds pressure and heat-treats it to remove water and emulsion. The Brookhaven Plant (2) is located in the Brookhaven Field in Lincoln County. This, too, is a unitized operation with the California Company, Sun Oil Company, Rosser & Pendleton, Stanolind, and Danciger the principal participants. It is a pressure maintenance and natural gasoline plant designed to handle 15 million cubic feet of field gas daily. This gas is processed for the recovery of propane, butane and natural gasoline and is then returned to the formation for maintenance of reservoir pressure. The Yazoo City Refinery (3) of the Southland Oil Company, and the Sandersville Refinery (4), near Laurel in Jones County and also owned and operated by the Southland Company, process over 2-million barrels of Mississippi crude oil annually, producing the highest quality gasoline, asphalt and other petroleum products for Mississippi markets. These four processing plants employ several hundred men and women and represent a sizeable investment in dollars and in confidence and faith in the future of the oil and gas industry in Mississippi.

RANGER URGES FOREST CARE

Were you hunting or fishing on Jordan River Sunday, November 11. And did you throw a cigarette in a dead pine top. Bill Andrews, Forest Ranger, is asking around town.

Because if you did, you may be the one responsible for the fire which burned almost 40 acres and damaged several hundred dollars of pine timber; if the fire had not been controlled by the forest fire-fighting crews, Andrews added, several sections of valuable timber would have been destroyed.

If the forestry boys had not arrived when they did, the cost to the property owner would have been several thousand dollars instead of several hundred.

"It is a sad but true fact," Andrews continued, "that one careless person can destroy more with one cigarette than a man and his family can accumulate in one year of back-breaking labor."

The property owner above has expressed his appreciation to the fire-fighting crews for their labor.

"This should remind us," the ranger added, "that the fire season is here and we should all take extra precautions to prevent forest fires which annually destroy millions of dollars in property."

Most of the fires today in this section of the state are caused from careless motorists and hunters and from people burning off pasture land with the mistaken idea that they will have better grazing next year.

If you see a forest fire as you ride along the highways, be sure and report it to the nearest fire tower. In Hancock County this may be done by phoning 2100.

"I am sure," Andrews concluded, "that if you tell the telephone operator you wish to report a forest fire she will give you immediate service - because the Rocky Hill tower has authority to accept collect calls from over the County reporting fires."

Appointed New Industries Representative of Mississippi Power Company

L. P. Sweatt, president of Mississippi Power Company, has announced the appointment of Victor J. Daniel, Jr. as new industries representative for the company, with the appointment scheduled to become effective December 1.

Daniel, a native Mississippian, born at Meridian, completed his high school education in the Meridian schools. He is a graduate of Mississippi State College, with a B. S. Degree in electrical engineering.

After graduation he was employed by Mississippi Power Company in the Commercial Department.

In September 1941, he joined the Army Air Corps, and in his service, he advanced to the rank of captain. After a tour of duty flying B-26 bombers in the European Theatre he was assigned as Chief, Marine Branch, Maintenance Division, at Wright Field. Upon separation from the service he was reemployed by Mississippi Power Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel, the former Margie Bailey of Gulfport, have one daughter.

In announcing Daniel's appointment, Mr. Sweatt said, "From the beginning of the company in 1925, we have aggressively sought to aid in the industrial and economic advancement of Mississippi and establish a department for this purpose. In addition to direct negotiations toward interesting national manufacturers to locate in Mississippi, Mr. Daniel's services in connection with industrial development will be available to all local Chambers of Commerce and other civic organizations in the area served by the company."

Why SPEED to DESTRUCTION

Cardinal rules of safety which drivers should obey to prevent their joining the ranks of accidental killers during the fall and winter months were outlined today by Officials of The Mississippi Safety Council in cooperation with the State Highway Safety Patrol and the National Safety Council.

"While these rules are to be heeded, at all times," declared A. S. Windham, Executive Director of The Safety Council, "they are especially recommended at this time of the year because of the heavy traffic caused by football games, coupled with the usual hazards of fall and winter driving."

The rules as handed down by the Safety Officials include: The only proper place for alcohol is in the radiator of a car - not in the driver.

Light and sound can safely ignore speed limits - the driver cannot. Obey both posted speed limits and those safe limits imposed by weather or other conditions.

Set an example for the driver behind you to follow. Avoid weaving from lane to lane, passing on the wrong side or at intersections.

Avoid "right-of-way" arguments is the one who remains alive! It's better to yield the right-of-way than to give up your life to prove you're right.

Look for and heed signs, signals and traffic officer's directions, especially at football games or other congested traffic areas.

When you leave your car to become a pedestrian, carry with you the same respect you have for traffic laws as a motorist.

Taking chances on the road is needless, going to or returning from sports events. Don't take the chances; don't be a "show-off" following the game.

means least important, is the fact that a shiny hood doesn't mean you have a safe car. Extend your care to include all mechanical and electrical equipment. The best breaks in driving come to the motorists who have the best brakes in their cars. Be positive that your car is in first class mechanical condition before undertaking the trip.

You Ask, "How much is a Rural Telephone Worth?"

"You ask, 'How much is a rural telephone worth?'" a subscriber said. "Well, in emergencies, like the time when our barn caught fire, there's no telling; but I can tell you that our telephone is worth more to us everyday than it costs us!"

Most telephone subscribers have ways of their own by which they measure the value of telephone service. Few, however, are in a position to estimate how much more it costs to provide good telephone service in these times of rapidly advancing prices of labor and materials—or to realize how these higher costs must affect telephone rates, or plans for future expansion of telephone facilities in Mississippi.

In the face of increasing prices for everything used by us, we have continued to expand and improve our rural telephone service in Mississippi, expending for this purpose more than $1/2 million dollars in less than 6 years since January 1, 1946. This $1/2 million was all new capital obtained from investors with faith in Southern Bell's ability to pay them a fair rate of interest for the use of their money.

One of the things our rates for telephone service must do, therefore, is to enable us to pay a reasonable rate of interest to investors. The other is to pay the cost of maintaining and operating our facilities.

The difference between telephone rates that are inadequate for these purposes and rates that enable us to provide good telephone service and expand to meet the growing demands of a growing state is only a few cents a day!

Save or Sink

With the purchasing value of the American dollar already shrunk to about fifty cents in the last 10 years, millions of savers are becoming alarmed over the threat of inflation and rising prices.

The integrity of the dollar is vital to the protection of those who own savings accounts, life insurance policies, government bonds, annuities or are counting on their social security.

We can keep the American dollar sound by saving money and demanding economy from our government—local state and federal. Reckless individual spenders and extravagant public officials feed the flagrant fires of inflation.

We cannot build prosperity by going deeper and deeper into debt and raising taxes higher and higher. However long we postpone it, the day of reckoning comes.

We cannot soak the savers and subsidize the spenders indefinitely. We will save or sink.

Fortunately, there are millions of provident people in the country. In the first three months of 1951, they were salting away savings at a peacetime peak of 21 billions a year, and the Federal Reserve Board says the annual rate of saving may have increased since.

We enjoy unprecedented prosperity on the Mississippi Gulf Coast. We are breaking all past records in earnings, spending saving.

Let's fortify ourselves further against that uncertain future. Economy, like charity, begins at home. We can spend a little less, save a little more and prevail upon our representatives in government to keep the American dollar sound, all to the end that we may hand down to our children the kind of country we inherited from our fathers—free, secure and solvent.

PMA Payment Program In Jeopardy, Warns Mississippi Farm Bureau Head

There is mounting danger that the PMA soil conservation payment program, through which Mississippi farmers receive aid for farm conservation practices, may be discontinued at an early date, warned Boswell Stevens, president of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation today.

Mr. Stevens reported that he has received information indicating that there is a growing feeling among farmers, particularly in the midwest, that the Agricultural Conservation Program, and possibly the price support program, should be discontinued under present administrative conditions.

Junking of the government program would necessarily suspend the program of soil conservation and better land use in all states of the nation. Mississippi farmers, in 1951 alone, have spent about eight million dollars in the program.

The annual government appropriation ranges from 200 million to 500 million dollars. The nation's farmers approximately triple the government's expenditures in the neighborhood of one billion dollars.

Leaders of some of the larger farm organizations in the country have charged on numerous occasions that the present administration has used some of the funds for political purposes. There is an apparent growing feeling in the areas in which the charges have been made that although the government assistance program may be needed, particularly in some areas, because of the improper administration the program should be abandoned or drastically curtailed.

It is generally conceded that the appropriation to carry on the program in 1952 would have been reduced by nearly 50 per cent had it not been for the action of Farm Bureau leaders who realized the need for a continuation of the Soil Conservation program.

In an effort to meet to objections to the methods of administering the program through the Department of Agriculture, the delegates to the annual convention of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation recently adopted a resolution recommending that in the future the responsibility for carrying out the program will be placed upon the individual states. That resolution is in keeping with the original law which created the Agricultural Conservation Program which provided that its administration would be turned over to the states when a sufficient number of states had passed the necessary legislation and submitted plans for carrying out the program.

The legislature of the state of Mississippi passed such enabling legislation in 1936 and more than a score of other states have also passed the necessary legislation.

The appropriating of Federal funds to pay part of the cost of carrying out soil conserving practices is based on the assumption that all of the people of the nation, through their Government, have a responsibility to preserve for posterity our soil and other natural resources. It has been reliably estimated that each year soil conservation practices costing more than one billion dollars, to carry out, are performed on farm lands at a cost to the Government of approximately 300 million dollars.

OPS ANNOUNCES CEILING PRICES FOR USED AUTOS
Dollars-and-cents ceiling prices on used cars will go into effect December 20, according to Thomas B. Terry, District Director for the Office of Price Stabilization in Jackson.

The new ceilings are spelled out in Ceiling Price Regulation 94 which applies to all used car sales by dealers or individuals. After December 20, all dealers must tag all used cars offered for sale with make and model and ceiling price, including any extra, special, or optional equipment, as well as the dealer's selling price.

The regulation further requires that after December 20 all dealers selling used cars must furnish purchasers, within seven days after the sale, a duplicate invoice giving detailed information specified in the regulation.

Ceiling prices listed in the regulation are for the models from 1940 through 1951. Autos made before 1940 models will take the ceiling price for the earliest make and model listed in the regulation. In case of a model after 1951, when sold as a new car, the ceiling price will be the ceiling delivered price of the car when new for the region where it is sold, including the price of any item of extra, special or optional equipment that is on the car. An allowance for a used car, traded in on a new or used car, may exceed the ceiling price listed in the regulation.

OPS said the ceiling prices spelled out in the regulation will apply through the first quarter of 1952 and will depreciate at the rate of two percent at the beginning of each subsequent quarter.

The new regulation specifically forbids dealers from requiring purchasers to make payment over a period of time, to finance the purchase through any particular lending agency, to buy extra or optional equipment, accessories, parts or services or any other commodity to obtain delivery of a used car, to trade in a used car, to accept less than a reasonable allowance for a trade-in car, or use of a rental or leasing contract with an option to buy, if the selling price plus rental charges exceeds the stated ceiling price. Detailed information about the new used automobile regulation may be obtained by writing to or contacting the District OPS at Jackson.

CONSTRUCTION REGULATION
The $30 billion a year construction industry is now covered under a new regulation designed by the Office of Price Stabilization to establish general ceiling prices on the basis of current costs of labor, materials and equipment, plus nine-tenths of the highest markup for profit which the seller had in effect for a similar job during the base period of July 1, 1949 to June 24, 1950.

OPS said the new regulation, Ceiling Price Regulation 93, is not expected to bring about any general increase in charges for construction work, except for actual increases in labor and material costs.

By removing the construction industry from CPR 34 and placing it under CPR 93, OPS effected the easing of certain difficulties which confronted the industry under the previous regulation and provided contractors with a more practical working program.

The new regulation lists and amplifies four general types of construction and related services which it covers.

They are building construction, highway construction, heavy construction and railroad construction, highway construction, heavy construction and railroad construction, and miscellaneous construction. Each type of construction service may involve the activities of contractors in specialized branches of industry such as plumbing, heating, air conditioning, electrical work, sheetmetal work, carpentry and the like in all of the many construction trades.

A. M. Penton, Kiln, has recently made an initial purchase of one registered Ayrshire according to the Ayrshire Breeder's Association Executive Secretary, C. T. Conklin, of Brandon, Vermont.

The transaction was recorded in the National office of the Ayrshire Breeder's Association in Brandon where complete records on all registered Ayrshires in the

ONE PLANE... doesn't make an Air Force

Many special types of aircraft ... built in many different plants ... are assembled in our nation's Air Force to assure an air arm that will not fail.

In a way, that's how the natural gas business operates, too. "Multiple sources of supply," we call it, but it simply means we have pipe line connections in many different gas fields to assure natural gas service that will not fail.

United Gas is producing or purchasing gas in more than 200 gas fields—and is adding new sources of supply all the time. That's why we can tell the communities and industries that are our present customers, as well as those who are connected to our lines in the future, they can be sure of dependable, low-cost natural gas service from United Gas.

HOME AGENT'S NOTES

By MISS MADGE ALLRED

A part of Christmas in the home, on the lawns, at parties and all occasions in December are the decorations. They may be the traditional red and green, the popular blue and silver or this year's favorite of gold alone or in combination with other colors.

As you plan your decorations, remember the common-place materials are better than the artificial "store bought" materials. Use dead magnolia leaves, pine cones, the common old cockle burr, red berries from Nandina, Holly, or cranberries, narrow-leaved evergreens as cedars, juniper and spruce, along with Christmas tree balls or a red bow.

Chinese red paint gives a brilliant scarlet covering to dead magnolia leaves. You can make beautiful artificial poinsettias by grouping the red leaves around small gold Christmas tree balls and wiring them to resemble the flower.

OLD FASHIONED WREATH
Stretch a coat hanger into a circle for a base. Wire greens to the frame with a fine wire that can be found at most hardware or dime stores. Wire small bunches of greens separately to the frame. Trim the wreath with berries. Make a bow from oil cloth, rather than cloth ribbon, if you plan to hang it outdoors.

TABLE DECORATION
For a quick decoration on the dining table, or a large arrangement on the coffee table, use a large Irish Potato, cut flat on one side. Place the potato in a small saucer or coaster to prevent damage to the table.

Cut a hole in the center and insert a red candle. Cut sprigs of green with sharp-pointed stems and stick them in the potato at the base of the candle, making a mass of greens. Stud the greens with berries or Christmas tree ornaments.

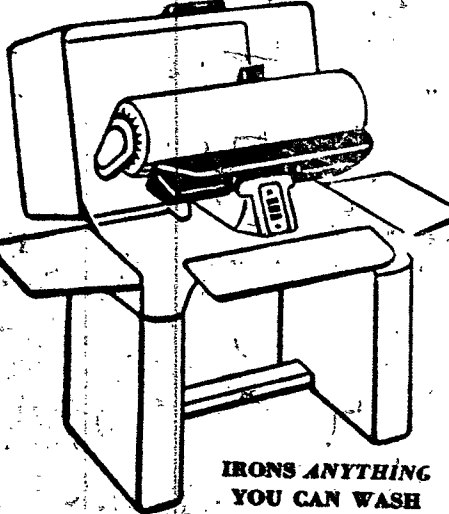

This is an excellent, quick centerpiece for long banquet tables where the candles are placed at intervals along the table. It is possible to make them up several days ahead of time.

DOORWAY DECORATION
The quickest and easiest decoration for a door is a "swag" of greens and berries or Christmas tree balls caught with a bow. Old style front doors, with glass halfway down the frame are good to decorate as shadow boxes. To do this, find a cardboard box the size of the glass, and cut away one side of the box. Line the box with dark blue foil paper, with small stars pasted on in irregular design. Make a scene with small figures, miniature church, dwarf artificial trees, or whatever meets your fancy. Anchor these objects with clay and bank the bottom with cotton. Hang the box on the inside of the door, so that the glass makes a covering in the front. An outside screen door is often a problem, but can be prepared for decoration easily if it's covered.
